

Veterans day honors all the veterans who have served in war, and mostly their courage. This holiday celebrates soldiers who have bravely served their country and helped our nation triumph over enemies. Memorial day has significant importance to many people, here in the US and internationally.

This holiday celebrates the bravery of the veterans who didn't give up and survived fighting for their country. This applies to the veterans who served in World War 2, during the Siege of Bastogne. During the Battle of the Bulge, the Germans had surrounded the 101st Airborne Division. They gave a choice to the Americans to surrender, but instead the division fought back after the commanding officer wrote 'Nuts!' back. Even though supplies were scarce and they were outnumbered 5:1, the army pulled through and some survived the attack. Veterans day honors all veterans, and how brave they were in battle.

Veterans Day also celebrates the bravery of veterans who saved many people. For example, William H. Pitsenbarger is a famous Vietnam War veteran. Pitsenbarger's bravery helped save 9 people, and was praised by many people as "... the bravest person I've ever known." Veterans Day doesn't just celebrate the veterans who saved many lives, but also their bravery and courage.

In conclusion, Veterans Day is not just a day that we honor our heroes, but also a day where we celebrate their bravery. We should celebrate their bravery and what it took to make those brave decisions. Veterans day is about the bravery of one or many veterans.
